The 2016 Term of the ISCWP’s “Beijing Roundtable on Contemporary Philosophy” workshop /symposium series is a small-size, half-day workshop on the theme “How constructive engagement of epistemological resources in classical Chinese philosophy and contemporary philosophy is possible”; the theme consist of these considerations: <1> it fits the general purpose of this workshop series (how comparative studies of Chinese and Western philosophy can contribute to the contemporary development of philosophy), <2> it can have those working on distinct epistemological connections (virtue epistemology, Gettier issue/nature of knowledge, the unity of knowledge and action, ...) talk to and enhance each other’s researches through attending their deep-seated “how is it possible...” philosophical concern, and <3> it addresses the fundamental methodological issue that would bear on the direction and strategic strategy of substantial approaches in this area. The workshop will be held on 15th July 2016.

The Beijing Roundtable workshop series has emphasized in-depth critical discussion on well-prepared research fruits on target issues. At this 2016 workshop, several scholars will present their recent research results on the theme. Interested colleagues who have had their well-prepared recent research writings on the theme are welcome to contact Bo Mou (Academic Coordinator for 2016 “Being Roundtable”) by 15th June 2016 at bo.mou@sjsu.edu for possible presentation/critical discussion arrangement.

Any interested ISCWP members and other colleagues are welcome to participate in this workshop. For further information concerning host organization, contact Prof. Linhe Han (hanlinhe@pku.edu.cn), the Host Representative.

Note: the less-formal small-workshop portion (of which the current term is part) of this workshop series is to focus maximally on academic discussion while spending less energy on non-academic aspects; it would fit those interested scholars who would then happen to be in Beijing or have their own travel funding. (The “Beijing Roundtable” is financially self-supported without using the ISCWP financial resources.)
