THE NAKPA COURIER

A Quarterly E-Newsletter of the North American Korean Philosophy Association

About NAKPA

The NAKPA was founded in 2013. We are now an affiliate group of the American Philosophical Association. The notion of Korean philosophy here shall be understood broadly enough to cover not only the traditional philosophy such as the Buddhist philosophies of Wonhyo and Jinul or for that matter the Joseon Neo-Confucianism but also the contemporary philosophy done on important current topics in and out of Korea by philosophers of Korean extraction or by those who are interested in philosophy in Korea. At this point, there are neither dues nor special membership requirements for NAKPA. For further information, please contact our editor:

We are still looking for two bibliographers on Korean philosophy for this newsletter, one for the latest literature published in the Korean language, the other for the non-Korean literature. If you want to serve in this function or know someone who can do that, please give us a holler.

Also, do not forget: If you have a publication that appeared recently or will appear soon, or if you have any suggestions about our operations, please let us know. We will be happy to circulate the news on the cyber-space.

By the way, if you receive this email, it is because you are on my list as a member of the NAKPA or a potential member. If you would like to be removed from the group email, please let us know. We plan to issue an enewsletter on a quarterly basis (February, May, August and December).

Once again I hereby send you my best regards on half of the NAKPA board.

Asian Ethnicity (Routledge)

Special Issue on 'Modern Korean Identity and Minorities'

Korea in the 21st century is a rapidly changing society with many different groups of people migrating there, but also growing numbers of Koreans are migrating elsewhere. This means that there has been a great transformation taking place on a peninsula that often has been described as homogeneous. Koreans have been forced to accept this inevitable change, encountering difficulties trying to cope with 'multiculturalism', while attempting to integrate (with varying degrees of success) various minorities from places in Asia such as China and Vietnam, but also from Europe and the United States, as well as political refugees from Yemen. This special issue hopes to explore modern Korean identity and minorities, both in terms of ethnicity, but also in relation to other minorities, such as the LGBTQ community, and 'others' seeking their own place/space and the rights that they should be entitled to.

We hope this issue will bring together a collection of insightful papers from international scholars working on varied topics, using different approaches.

If you have questions regarding whether your paper is suitable for this special issue or not, please contact our executive editor Kevin Cawley (K.Cawley@ucc.ie) Deadline for submission: September 15, 2019

Tentative publication month: June 2020

Papers can be submitted directly on our website https://www.tandfonline.com/toc/caet20/current

Call for Papers: Journal Entries

Korean Studies

Our journal will appear in SCOPUS later this month, so it should be more appealing to people based in Korea as well as elsewhere. Our application for SSCI and A&HI is still pending. It would be great if you could consider submitting something to our journal as well as share this information with people in your network. Obviously, everything goes through regular peer review, but KS should now start to appear on more people's radar as a place to submit their work, particularly since they can now start to get more credit for publishing here.

Journal of Chinese Philosophy

Professor So Jeong Park (SKKU) is now working for Journal of Chinese Philosophy as a Korean region book review editor, one of Asia and Europe Book Review Editors. You can find the information here: https://onlinelibrary.wiley.com/page/journal/15406253/ homepage/editorialboard.html

We think both Korean and English books are fine if the book review is written in polished English. We believe that this is good chance to advertise Korean scholarship and promote Korean philosophy. JCP is also considering several special issues of Korean philosophy.

Confluence: Online Journal of World Philosophies

Confluence: Online Journal of World Philosophies is a biannual, peer-reviewed, international journal dedicated to comparative thought. It seeks to explore common spaces and differences between philosophical traditions in a global context. Without postulating cultures as monolithic, homogenous, or segregated wholes, it aspires to address key philosophical issues which bear on specific methodological, epistemological, hermeneutic, ethical, social, and political questions in comparative thought. http://www.verlag-alber.de/e-journals/confluence/#concept Confluence aims to develop the contours of a philosophical understanding not subservient to dominant paradigms and provide a platform for diverse philosophical voices, including those long silenced by dominant academic discourses and institutions. Confluence also endeavors to serve as a juncture where specific philosophical issues of global interest may be explored in an imaginative, thought-provoking, and pioneering way. We welcome innovative and persuasive ways of conceptualizing, articulating, and representing intercultural encounters. Contributions should be able to facilitate the development of new perspectives on current global thought-processes and sketch the outlines of salient future developments.

Upcoming Conferences on Korean Philosophy

Philosophy: Lessons for the West

Join St George's philosopher-in-residence Julian Baggini and his guests for the first in a new series of evenings of philosophical discussion. Bryan van Norden and Jin Y. Park are two of the world's leading philosophers working at the intersection of east and west. Park's book Buddhism and Postmodernity combines Zen and Huayan Buddhism with Continental philosophy, while van Norden's book Taking Back Philosophy: A Multicultural Manifesto has challenged western philosophers to open their minds and doors to other traditions. In discussion with Julian Baggini they will be talking about what we can learn from Asian thought and the obstacles to genuine core-cultural philosophising.

Bryan van Norden is Kwan Im Thong Hood Cho Temple Visiting Professor at Yale-NUS College, Singapore.

Jin Y. Park is Professor of Philosophy and Religion at American University and President of the Society for Asian and Comparative Philosophy

Message from the organizers about upcoming conference:

Greetings on behalf of the Sungkyun Institute for Confucian Studies and East Asian Philosophy and the Ricci Institute for Chinese-Western Cultural History. We hold an international conference on May 22-23, 2020, on the campus of Sungkyunkwan University, the historic heart of Confucianism in Korea. The theme of the conference, in general terms, is the diverse and complex interactions between Confucianism and Christianity in China, Korea, Japan, and Vietnam during the 16th-19th centuries. Invited presenters will give lectures on topics such as philosophical and theological exchanges, influences, and debates, theoretical and practical impacts on music, liturgy etc., exchanges between and mutual influences on book/print culture, and political/social/ideological controversies—e.g. the Korean case of Christianity being considered a dangerous "heterodox" interpretation of Confucianism—that occurred in these four cultures during this period.

Our conference will be open to all interested faculty, staff, and students of Sungkyunkwan University, members of our brother and sister institutions throughout Korea, and the public at large. The primary audience is academics who have significant familiarity with either one of or both the Catholic and Confucian traditions. Should you have any questions about the event, please do not hesitate to contact any of us.
