

Coffee Time Talks on Chinese Thought

Body and Mind in the Analects:
Embodied Cognition, Digital Humanities, and the Project of Comparative Philosophy

Professor Edward Slingerland
University of British Columbia

Monday September 27, 2021 10:00-11:30am CST on Zoom

Zoom ID 984 9500 6071

<https://slu.zoom.us/j/98495006071>

The claim that the notion of psychological interiority is completely lacking from the Analects of Confucius, and the related claim that psychological interiority itself is a particularly Western concept, is still frequently heard. It is also commonly claimed that mind-body dualism is entirely foreign to early China—or ‘the East’ more generally. This talk will explore how engaging with the cognitive sciences and digital humanities undermines claims such as this, and more broadly can help us to do our work as scholars of comparative philosophy.

Sponsored by:

Center for Asian Studies, Department of Theological Studies, & Department of Philosophy at Saint Louis University

Upcoming Coffee Time Talks in Fall 2021:

November 1, 2021, 10-11:30am CST, Ms. Maddalena Poli, University of Pennsylvania, Manuscript Culture and the Analects

November 8, 2021, 10-11:30am CST, Professor Anna Sun, Duke University, Confucianism as a World Religion

Questions? Email pauline.lee@slu.edu